Abstract

The personality and the theology of Saint Maximus the Confessor are very important when someone wants to analyze the Christological dispute. Perhaps he was one of the most conclusive regarding this subject. More exactly, our saint wrote in the 7th century many works against nestorianism and monophysite heresies, stressing why is important to believe that in Christ, the Son of God incarnated, there is only one hypostasis but with two natures and with two wills. Our article attempts to explain how St. Maximus should be read and understood today and in doing this we extracted many passages from his works which we interpreted in connection with many scriptural verses. There is also explained the Orthodox formula of Saint Cyril about the incarnated Christ.
