Abstract

In the interfaith meetings of the modern and contemporary period, it was often raised the relation/rapport that existed and must exist between the Gospel and culture in the process of spreading the teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ throughout the world.

The given answers were not infrequently contradictory, taking in account the nature of the religious traditions , and the missionary work of every Christian denominations.

The representatives of the Orthodox Churches have come to these meetings with their old tradition of over two thousand years in which the gospel met constantly the cultural traditions of peoples among whom the good news was transmitted.
