Abstract

The event of Pentecost marked the beginning of the Church's mission in the world through the Holy Apostles. They reap the ripe fruits of Christ's work, but at the same time those sowing faith and life in Christ. Through the Apostles of the Lord, the fire of Pentecost spread to the edges of the earth and to the end of history, and this fire keeps alive the Tradition of deification in the Orthodox Church. The mission of the Church is articulated on the paradigm of the apostolic mission, having an equally evangelical, apologetic and edifying character.
